

Refund Disputes and Rejections

Document ID: RF-004 | Version 3.2 | Effective: 1 January 2026 | Department: Refunds

1. Why a Refund May Be Rejected

- Return request made after the return window
- Item failed quality check (used, damaged by customer, missing parts)
- Item belongs to a non-returnable category and has no defect
- Serial or IMEI mismatch, suggesting swapped goods
- Evidence of misuse of the returns system

2. Customer Notification

Every rejection is communicated through the app, SMS and email, and includes the specific reason and supporting QC photos. Generic rejections without evidence are not permitted.

3. Appeal Process

- Customers have 3 days from the rejection notice to appeal
- Appeal is made through Return Details > Appeal or by contacting support
- A different reviewer examines the case and responds within 3 working days
- Additional evidence, such as unboxing video or invoices, may be submitted
- The appeal decision is final, except for escalation under the Complaint Escalation Policy (CS-002)

4. Returned Rejected Items

If a return fails QC and the refund is rejected, the item is sent back to the customer at no charge if the customer requests it within 7 days. After 7 days, Daraz may dispose of or resell the item.

5. Seller Disputes

A Marketplace seller may dispute a return within 2 working days of receiving it. If the seller and customer disagree, Daraz's Dispute Team reviews all evidence. Under the Buyer Protection Program, if the evidence is inconclusive the decision favours the customer.

6. Chargebacks

If a customer files a chargeback with their bank while a refund request is open, the Daraz refund is paused until the bank decides. The customer will not receive both the chargeback and the refund. Duplicate recoveries are reversed.

7. Fraud Prevention

Repeated false claims, such as claiming non-delivery of an item that was delivered with OTP confirmation, may lead to refund restrictions or account suspension after a fair review.
